

Intergenerational hiring: Can Boomers and Gen Y come to terms in the workplace?

Intergenerational communication is a hot topic in human resource circles — for good reason. For the first time in history, four generations are working under the same roof at the same time. Each generation has its own values, dreams, expectations, and approaches to work. Not surprisingly, these generations often clash. This presentation explores these conflicts and offers some practical answers to that burning question: Can't we all just get along?

About our speaker

Miles R. Wickstrom is a training and development specialist for TOC Management Services, one of the Northwest's largest employer's associations. He delivers more than 100 training programs a year and has traveled across the country to help supervisors and managers develop their personal and professional effectiveness. He is a graduate of Marylhurst University, where he studied training and development. His irreverent style and insightful observations make his programs a treat for all.
